

Plumber Northlake IL Melrose Park Northwest Suburbs Irish Frog Northlake and Melrose Park, Illinois, are established northwest Cook County communities with housing stock that reflects the mid-20th century development that characterized so much of the Chicago suburbs during that era. Irish Frog Services covers both communities with its full range of plumbing, sewer, drain, and flood prevention services, and the crew's familiarity with the plumbing systems typical of homes built in the 1950s and 1960s makes them well suited to the service needs of Northlake and Melrose Park homeowners. Homes from this era in Northlake plumber northwest suburbs chicago and Melrose Park commonly have cast iron drain lines that have reached an age where interior corrosion can cause persistent slow drain issues even after cleaning, because the rough interior surface of deteriorated cast iron collects debris faster than smooth modern pipe. Irish Frog's camera inspection service reveals the condition of these drain lines and helps homeowners make informed decisions about whether cleaning is sufficient or whether section replacement is the better long-term investment. The sump pump needs of Northlake and Melrose Park homeowners are significant during the heavy rain events that regularly affect the area. Irish Frog installs and services sump pumps with battery backup systems that keep basements dry even when the power goes out, which is the exact scenario when flooding risk is highest.
