

Many families who begin with a rental violin through LVL Music Academy eventually transition to purchasing an instrument as their child progresses and it becomes clear that they are committed to continuing their musical journey. LVL's rental-to-purchase pathway is designed to make this transition smooth and financially sensible. Because rental instruments at LVL are maintained to a high standard and set up correctly, students who begin their learning on a rental violin develop their technique on an instrument that is genuinely representative of what a good Cello Shop Singapore violin feels and sounds like. This means that when the time comes to purchase, the student has a clear sense of what to look for and can engage meaningfully with the process of selecting their own instrument. Alan Senejani at LVL can advise on the right time to transition from rental to purchase based on the student's development, their physical growth, and the repertoire they are working on. His guidance ensures that families invest in an instrument purchase at the right moment and choose something that will serve the student for violin store in Singapore the next several years of their development.
